The ActiveAdvice project aims to deliver a fully functional ICT environment with specific web services for older adults and their relatives to support their independent living, for businesses and service providers across Europe, as well as for governments and municipalities involved in Active and Assisted Living (AAL). The ICT environment offers a holistic market overview, presenting regional, national and international AAL products and services in accordance with the needs of the end users, and combines it with an integrated focus on the target market.

Are you looking for intelligent products to support your daily life?

Are you a business aiming to compete on a pan-European level?

Are you a government representative, supporting older adults and informal caregivers?

Visit ActiveAdvice & find what you are looking for!
